"NEW SPIRITUALIST MOVEMENT" --(From article titled Messages from Venus, by A.P. religion writer G.W. Cornell; appearing in the Oregonian of Oct. 18, 1957. The BSR publications have several times commented, during the past decade, on the silence or very hesitant commitments of spiritualist writers and believers, on the subject of the aeroforms (UFO's). There has been no lack of pronouncements from the 'other side', received by psychics, mediums, and 'sensitives' in all parts of the world - but also, no lack of obscurities, contradictions, and obvious guesswork. Yet if correct information is accessible (as I believe it is) through psychic means, now is certainly the day and hour for spiritism (and spiritualism) to contribute whatever excellence it possesses.

As our Associates know, our own publications have been studying and reporting the remarkable deep-trance mediumship of Mark Probert for some ten years past. This approach has not been cultist or religionistic, and is hardly to be classed as spiritualism in the ordinary sense. In 1946-47 we received a basic interpretation of the UFO phenomena, and the 'Controls' who formulated it have never receded from it in any important respect. And in degree as it is studied and understood it is slowly but steadily gaining acceptance.

I do not wish to be understood as saying that the "new spiritualism" would accept all the statements and implications of the article quoted below, or that a supernormal source guarantees truth and accuracy in itself. Perhaps the most plausible inference of all is that the multitude of excarnate humans know as little about the UFO as do most here-living people. I think there are many persons on 'both sides' who do have the correct knowledge - and some of them are willing and even anxious to reveal it - but because this knowledge is very partial and inadequate, it usually appears contradictory. The whole planetary situation is enormously complex. -- One sympathizes with Richet, who reportedly said, when asked what he believed: "I believe in the Unknown Hypothesis; but I cannot tell you what it is, because it is unknown."

We are indebted to Assoc. Edw. Bruno Waitzig, of Orchards, Washington for the clip quoted below: (Rt. 1, Box 427)

People from the planet Venus are reported keeping a close watch on the earth these days. This is the contention of a new spiritualist movement, which holds that messages from Venus are coming in regularly. And now, with that Russian satellite whirling around out there in space, they assertedly feel the time is ripe to get better acquainted.

"They plan to begin token landings next month," said Robert Ewing, a Florida man who has made lengthy recordings of the alleged messages. Within organized spiritualism, a huge religious activity in this country with an estimated 2,000,000 followers, such claims are keenly controversial. "It's a comparatively new thing so far as the whole movement is concerned," said Agnes Reuther, editor of the Psychic Observer, a national spiritualist organ.

"There are numerous instances in which information has been given by spirits that these other people are there. Many have been studying and wondering about these reports. Others are not so receptive." Tradition ally, spiritualists have confined their mystic efforts to communicating with departed souls. In Portland, Me., where America's most conservativ branch, the National Spiritual association, was in convention this week, Trustee Dr. Victoria Barnes, of Chicago, said of the claims about Venus: "We do not accept taat."

Rev. Dr. William Hubbard, president of the Main association, said the reports were "not dignified." "We accept only that which can be proved. At this time, we feel this (communication with Venus) has no bearing on spiritualism. Our board of education does not teach it." However, Mrs. Reuther said less conservative groups - and there are about 50 organized wings of spiritualiam - are not so skeptical.

Ewing, 41, a psychology graduate of Dartmouth and formerly a commercial pilot, maintains Venus has sent word disclosing, among other things 1. That they have eight large platforms, with landing strips and living quarters, circling the earth as satellites at a distance of 10,000 miles any view of them prevented by the bending of light rays. 2. That for four years, Venus' space ships from these bases have been observing ear with 462-foot "mother ships" hovering over the southeastern United Stat 15 miles up, with magnetism-powered smaller ships - "Ventlases" - opera ing from it.

3. That Venusians are built like earth people, although generally a bit taller and finer featured, that they worship God, believe in life after death, have a civiliaation far advanced over ours, with the average life span 400 to 500 years. 4. That their original purpose in coming here was to halt pollution of space by radioactive dust from atomic blasts on earth, and that they have been releasing charges - the so-called "green fireballs" seen on earth - to counteract the effects. 5. Tha their intentions are entirely benevolent, but that they will not permit an atomic-hydrogen war which would contaminate space and perhaps destroy earth - that they will slap down any atomic missiles fired for war. 6. That they take no sides in the running dispute between Russia and the United States.

7. That they allowed the Russian satellite to stay up because it had no warhead, but that they are affecting its orbit and slowing it down by magnetism. 8. That they feel earth complacency about life on other plan ets has now been sufficiently shaken so that Venusians can begin visitin withour causing panic, and they plan to start landings at selected sites in November.

9. That the visits will be stepped up as earth people become adjusted to the idea, through 1958 and 1959, and that by 1962, Venusians with the advanced knowledge will have ushered ina "new age" on earth. 10. That o Venus, all disease has been conquered, that inhabitants are clairvoyant and understand thoughts of all others, that dishonesty is impossible, th news is transmitted by thought processes at the rate of 50,000 words pe.

minute, that homes are built of a type of nylon-rubber-plastic substance, that the main danger is from electrical storms. All this data, and much more, Ewing claims he has received tape-recorded conversations with Venusians, partly with the planet's ruling counselor, "Hamamatra," but mostly with a 250-year-old master teacher, Cymatrali." "I am the one assigned to soften you up on earth," she is quoted as telling him. A key figure in the cause, Enid Brady, minister of the First Spiritual church, of Daytona Beach, Fla., said she has been "in actual contact" with the Venusians for six months, after four years research.

EXCERPTS FROM LETTER, ASSOC. J. L. SQUANCE 10/11/57

I am personally very interested in, and hopeful that someday more light may be thrown on, the hints I have received that there is a library of ancient knowledge and wisdom in California. The first inkling I had, had reference to a place near Ben Lomond, which is a few miles north of Santa Cruz. My informant, a woman of considerable psychic powers, speaks of a library of ancient knowledge in the ground. I have been shown the place and know there is something "out of this world" about the spot but don't know yet what it is.

I would not have thought I had enough to warrant writing of this had I not just read Dana Howard's book, "Dianne - She Comes From Venus". The writer refers to Mt. Shasta as having a strange history of mysterious occurrences and specifically to a cliff side over one hundred feet long covered with strange writing which she says has not yet been deciphered.

This bothers me. Do you know of this writing? Has it been photographed or copied? I believe that a medium could get it translated for us. It is in fact possible that if it should be Venusian writing the above mentioned person might be able to render it. (She has been a citizen of Venus at some time). If this writing is of the people of the continent of Mu, then James Churchwards' works might throw some light on it. Then there is a reference to a library of knowledge in what Dana had to say about Mt. Shasta. Unfortunately for my bump of curiosity I am working six days a week and furthermore sometimes feel the lack of more education in delving into these things.

In one of Atha McClellands' books, the spirit writer refers to the West Coast of North America as being specially blessed by reason of its being the land of acivilization of long ago which people lived in peace and harmony for many hundreds of years.

The new age which is being ushered in has in my opinion some mysterious link with the ancient past of this land. I wonder if I shall ever know what it is that I sense in these odd fragments that I keep unearthing.

I had no idea I was going to write all this when I started. Thank you for listening.

LETTER FROM CEYLON

Dear Friend:

I would like to thank you for recent copies of CQC and RR at hand and for the stimulating guidance you continue to give in the Borderland Sciences field. The thing which I have appreciated most in your work is your openness of mind with the credulous on the one hand or dogmatically skeptical on the other. I think too many 'Saucer' writers are now spending their time in polemics, remarkably similar in many ways to some aspects of the religious field, and I find it tiresome.

I have not yet read Mr. James' "Spacemen, Friends or Foes" but found your extract very interesting, especially in view of your own theory that space people were investigating certain changes taking place deep in the earth. Recently I came across a book called PLUTONIA, by a Russian writer V. A. Obruchev, first published in 1924 and now issued in a new edition in English by Lawrence O Wishart, London, England. This is science fiction of course, but interesting because of the corroboration it gives James theory of inhabited space at the centre of the earth. Perhaps you have already commented on this book: if so forgive me for mentioning it here.

When Mr. James in his recent letter to you goes on to suggest that the bulk of UFO phenomena are of Satanic origin, I feel a little doubtful. Especially when he suggests they are in league with one ideological world group. When it comes to evil and stupidity, these factors itseems to me are pretty evenly spread around the world! There is evidence of course of hostile forces at work in the skies. I am not convinced that all the plane crashes in recent years have been accidents. As well, planes, people and even ships have dissappeared. Something hit a P.O. liner 170 miles out at sea from here and damaged the upper decks. The story put out that there was a collision deceived nobody! It is interesting to feel that C. S. Lewis in his "Venus Revisi ed" Makes one of his characters speak of the moon as a nest of evil. I shall await Mr. James book with interest but I shall continue to keep a very open mind about his theory.

Your reference to the Tesla communications in July-August RR I found remarkable. This theory of an invasion from 'space' beings come to our rescue would explain many things. For example, why science made such a mighty leap forward in the last century or again why certain people are selected for contacts. The contactees may all be space people. Whatever it may be I find it difficult to resist the conviction that some of our 'visitors' at least are here to help us. But what is the nature of that help and what is the danger that threatens? According to Gray Barker the president of U. S. A. would be compelled to make an announcement in 1957. So far no announcement - and the year is running out. There seems to have been an extraordinary obscurity about the President's public activities recently. He seems to keep well in the background of the public stage. Personally since I first became interested in this phenome non been battling with the tremendous theological and philosophical issues involved. So far the Churches have given no guidance nor have any particular Churchmen gone very deeply into the matter. We must each I suppose struggle along on our own. But the mental conflict involved is tremendous. We have to build up a new world view (Weltes-chammp) and for those of us commited to the Christian interpretation this is a task we cannot evade. Many of us are grateful for your help and will continue to be.

Ever yours Sincerely,

Robert A. Nelson

"Doom Of Seafood"-- (From THE SAN DIEGO UNION, San Diego, Calif. Fri., Oct. 4, 1957). -- Your favorite seafood dish shrimp cocktail, lobster newburg, oysters, clams, filet of sole - may be doomed.

Dumping of atomic waste material into the oceans is already contaminating fish and shellfish in some areas. Within a generation, there is a possibility that the world may be deprived of most of its seafood harvests because of radioactive poisoning.

This warning is given by Canadian scientists who are concerned over the effects of dumping radioactive wastes into the sea. The U.S.Atomic Energy Commission has authorized such dumpings of large quantities of radioactive sodium waste.

The waste is packed in steel drums before being jettisoned. But scientists have doubts about the effectiveness of such containers.

The problem of atomic waste disposal is serious. It will grow more acute as the atomic age advances and nations all over the world turn increasingly to atomic energy.

Research is being pushed on possible means of deactivating the waste. Scientists hope, but are by no means confident, that atomic-free waste will eventually be achieved.

For a temporary disposal measure, the burying of radioactive waste in remote northern regions of the Canadian and Alaskan arctic has been discussed. Atomic wastes are the radioactive fission materials left over in the atomic energy plants, like ashes and slag remaining in a fireplace or furnace.

Research workers report that shellfish are especially susceptible to contamination because of the particular processes of their tissues and blood. Shellfish observed in test zones showed that they had begun to concentrate radioactive cobalt in their bodies.

Eating fish contaminated by radioactive waste could add appreciably to the overall background radiation hazards to which human beings are subjected, with the inherent threat of increasing bodily malformations in newborn children and the general incidence of cancer.

The rapid rate of world population increase is underlining the importance of the sea as a food source. Already millions of people, particularly in Asia, depend heavily on fish as a staple diet.

Even without war, most scientists agree that fish resources are already being adversely affected to some extent. But as in all other fields of dispute over nuclear activity, the experts vary widely and violently in their estimates of the actual and potential degree of danger.

" The Physical Proof You have Been Waiting For" Under this title the REVIEW discusses the flight of three UFO over the city of Campinas, State of Sao Paulo, Brazil (Pop. 300,000)One of the UFO dived very low ans was seen to drop a liquid which fell "like silver rain" - an incandescent molten metal which solidified on reaching the ground. Some 30 pieces were collected from different people. Samples were sent to military authorities and to the Young Laboratories at 584 Francisco Deodoro St., Sao Paulo. Dr. D. Maffei, chief chemist, analyzed the sample before witnesses and promptly released the following report:

"The sample analyzed is a combination of chemically pure tinand oxygen, as oxide, with no other element or impurity of any kind. I can affirm categorically said Dr. Maffei, that this is the purest tin ever found on earth. . . I consider this material to be completely unknown to this earth. Subsequent tests made in the Dept. of Chemistry at Defiance College (Defiance, Ohio) confirmed the findings.

(With the development of atomic research in the early years of this century which culminated in the "splitting" of the atom, the A and B theories were exploded so devastingly that repercussions have continued in all fields of human thought ever since. For both theories are shown to be false in light of a third; that matter can be divided and subdivided down to the atom , but when that is reached it vanishes; it has neither been resolved into elementary building blocks nor into particles which can be further divided and subdivided - it has become MIND.

The pioneers of nuclear fission, humans like Rutherford, Einstein, Chadwick, Curie, Joliot, Fermi, Hahn, Meitner and others, were not a crew of explorers who had landed individually or collectively, on the shores of a new world in broad daylight, provided with maps and compasses. They were, and still are adventurers lost in a jungle, travellers through darkness moving in circles - the radii within the atom which they cannot see. Even as they calculated, guessed and assumed re - garding atomic particles far too small to be seen, and which could only be examined by the tracks they made - the earlier pioneers were living in a world so full of negative energy electrons that none of them noticed them: particles not of matter but of anti-matter. . .

The plain truth - so unpalatable and indigestible to the materialist, is that world science has already reduced matter to mind and is moving towarda reduction of mind to spirit. The pioneers of the new exploration are little-known humans of our generation. How many readers of newspapers, or even of scientific or literary journals, have heard of O.S. Wauchope. Everyone has heard of Einstein .. but names like Reichenbach, Scudder, Klyce, Abbott, Fort and Wauchope are unknown to millions interested in scientific research and in philosophy . . .

If an atom is analyzed it eludes the observer by passing into a world of four dimensions. If nuclear fission scientists follow it there it will elude them again by passing into a world of five dimensions, and so on . . .

. . . . On all sides, Anti-atomic committees are being formed Kampfbund gegen Atomschaden in Germany, with 250,000 members. Movimiento de Hombres Libres pro Supresion Pruebas atomicas, in the Argentine - Comite de Action feminine pour L'arret des Experiences Atomiques in Belgium, etc. ..

. . . .Man having committed the sin of sins, the crime of crimes against God - the disassociation of the constituent elements of life, or anti-creation - is about to receive his deserts - 60 thousand babies will die each year as a result of atomic and thermo-nuclear explosions. Crime of crimes against humanity. The French National Assembly has just invited the French Government to propse as a matter of urgency to U.N.O., the creation of an International Commission of Inquiry on crimes against humanity. Urgency indeed! there is barely time!

. . . . INDISCREET QUESTIONS: Why is secrecy being maintained in high places over discoveries made by astronomers of the whole world, on occasion of the near approach of the planet Mars at the beginning of September 1956? -- Why should a so-called giant meteor crash onto the planet Mars just at the moment the tele - scopes of all observatories were trained upon our sister planet?

. . . . Why, at a time when apparently there is no more talk of "flying saucers" do we hear of the sensational declaration of the astronomer Clyde Tombaugh (that in his opinion the UFO observed during the last ten years could be coming from outside our solar system? AP N.Y. Post, Jan. 20, 1957). Why was the American Rear-Admiral Farnhey able to declare "as a certain and indisputable fact", that the earth's atmosphere was 'over-run' with space ships?.

Why did the chief of the Commission of the Norwegian Army, Command Darnhyl, declare that the machine that crashed at Spitzbergen in 1950 was of extra - terrestrial origin - "the materials of which it is composed being entirely un - known to all our experts? "

Why does not the American Government at last make available to the public the very precise information which it possesses concerning the space ships which have crashed on the soil of the USA, particularly in June 1947 and in 1948 - machines examined by Dr. Garland, and containing, at least once, small charred figures. And the book by Frank Scully giving details of these landings which are absolutely exact (we defy anyone to prove the contrary - why has it been definitely withdrawn from circulation ?

. . . . Why do two books by the famous Dr. H.P. Wilkins, reveal the existence on the moon of a bridge, a tunnel, and a wall, gigantic and artificial - and that it is possible to distinguish luminous rays, large parallel bands, and craters which change their aspect or which disappear completely, like the crater Alhazen? Why are 'they' planning the launching, upon the moon or Venus, of a teleguided rocket laboratory with a television camera? And why do Russian scientists explain the possibility of unloading on Mars "telecommanded itinerant tank laboratories, with special apparatusx for establishing contact with intelligent beings, in case of there being any such on Mars.

. . . . Can we any longer doubt the extra-terrestrial origin of these machines watching over our backward world. . . And the so-called atomic epidemic(the first one) is already with us in the form of the "Asian 'flu, which is likely an induced mutation.

"EYELESS SIGHT DEMONSTRATION AGAIN REJECTED "

(Excerpt from Bulletin of the Huna Research Associates No. 124, Nov. 1, 1957: Page 3, ff. By Max Freedom Long, Director.

You will recall that some years ago Kuda Bux demonstrated fire-walking and eyeless sight under rigid test conditions ... and proved beyond doubt that these things are possible, and that "authorities" on the subject of human con - sciousness could not give the slightest explanation of them. Now, some twenty years later, we find that our "men of science" have not made a single step toward understanding things to which they continue to deny a hearing. Recently Jack Anderson (for Drew Pearson; Washington Merry-Go-Round)told an alarming story of scientific blindness which is preventing thousands of blind veterans and others from being given a chance to learn to see without eyes.

William Foos, a railroad man of Ellerson, Va., who has long had an inter- est in E.S.P. research, had successfully taught his daughter Margaret, as her her chum, to use eyeless sight ... and applied for a hearing to the heads of the Veterans Administration. Twenty-five top men of the V.A., under the leadership of the chief of psychiatry, Dr. J.F. Casey, tested the girl's ability under the most rigid conditions, with no chance left that she could see through or around the blindfold. She read passages from the bible, traced crooked lines and played checkers, identifying the pieces and other random objects. The chum took her turn and read easily from journals handed to her, all the while wearing the special blindfold. Neither girl received signals, as was proved when working alone while her friends went into another room. The tests lasted three hours.

The doctors and others refused to admit that the demonstrations could have been less than trickery. They were afraid that they would be laughed at by their fellows ... so they refused to have more to do with the matter and the veterans continued without hope.

It is interesting to note how Mr. Foos went about training his teenage daughter. Going from experiments with telepathy to the subject of eyeless sight, he began working with childrem playing the game of blind man's bluff. He claims that several of the local children picked up the rudiments of seeing with closed eyes. He specialized on the training of his daughter, and brought her psychic ability up to a high point of training. He has no theory to explaining how this form of "seeing" is accomplished, but he can prove it to be learnable, and is de- termined to help the blind with his findings . . . The amateur with an open mind puts the professionals to shame. In Huna we are in the same amateur position but we must not give up ... the world needs to be told over and over again, that the leaven may begin to work. . . . "

As an addendum to the foregoing I call attention to a long-neglected book: EYELESS SIGHT: PUB. IN TRANSLATION by G.F. Putnam's Sons, N.Y., 1924: "A Study of Extra-Retinal Vision and the Paroptic Sense, by Jules Romains (Louis Farigoule), Ancien Eleve ,,, etc. Translated by C.K. Ogden. 250 ppg. . . It may not be en- tirely useless to refer to certain 'psychic ' powers and effects, of seeing with the back of the head, with the solar plexus, with finger-tips, palms of the hands etc. - all of which point toward the existence of at least a latent paroptic power and vast possibilities in its practical development.

GOOD NEWS TO CALIFORNIA CANCER VICTIMS: --- (from National Health Federation Bulletin Volume III - Numbers 9 - 10, Sept-Oct 1957

By the time you receive this Bulletin, The Hoxey Cancer Treatment will be available to Californians, at the Fremont Clinical Service, 5625 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles California.

The clinic, made of marble and tile throughout, is housed in a beautiful two-story building, in a good section of the city. There are dozens of treating rooms, complete diagnostic equipment and everything required for the comfort, care and convenience of the patient.

Doctors, nurses and technicians, trained in the Hoxey methods, will always be on hand, ready to render the best possible service offered by the system. Other ailments are also treated by various specialists on the clinic's staff.

Now is the time for all right thinking people, interested in the right of a cancer victim to seek health wherever it may be found, when orthodox methods (so called) have been used and failed, to band themselves together into a strong, vital organization, for the purpose of defending this new venture against those who would and wil attempt to destroy it.

The California Branch of the American Cancer Society will no doubt be used to spearhead the drive against this work. Those who contribute to it should insist, this year when they give, that not one cent of the gift shall be used in any manner, to impede this great work.

N. H. F. will do everything within its power to protect the right of California cancer victims to secure the treatment of their choice within the state borders.

To do this the Federation must have the active support of its membership, as well as that of many more members.

The fight is on - we must not fail - we will not fail, if we Pray and Work and Give.

FROM ARTIST COLUMBA KREBS:

Editor, CQC:

I hope you will like my latest effort to advertise my art.

Did I ever tell you about seeing a Space-ship diving straight down into the sea, not far from the shore at Ocean Beach, February 1955? The geyser of water it raised was as high as the Woolworth Building, and when it subsided, there was a ring of (what looked like) wooly clouds, that did not move in the strong wind! I had other experiences along that line, which have been written up in my book: "Visiting Spacemen", (which I also illustrated). It is now being looked over by a publisher in California.

Hoping to become a subscriber to your wonderful magazines soon again, with all best wishes for your success.

"WHO SHOULD JUDGE THE ATOM?" (from the "Saturday Review", August 3, 1957) --

"....Whether we like it or not, whether the Atomic Energy Commission knows it or not, fall-out has now become a great and crucial problem of our times. We are now dealing with a global health problem. We must take steps to face up to this new problem and we must educate the public to the many fact-finding prospects on radiation. The world should know that the AEC is sponsoring more than fifty important research programs in this field of radiation alone. We should get the facts out in plain language as fast as they are discovered. We should publish official AEC bulletins often and disseminate them widely for public information. At the very least, the Atomic Energy Commission could demonstrate its awareness of the hazard and the need for safety by telling the public more plainly how much effort is going into the measurement and evaluation of atmospheric contamination. The Soviets are outmaneuvering us in this radiation field and are misleading millions of uninformed o r misinformed people. We are failing to use our information and thereby losing leadership by default.

"Obviously, some control and limitation of weapons testing is now mandatory. I would not for one moment suggest that the United States stop testing without some form of international agreement to insure that all other nations would also desist. Any deviation from this basic principle of multilateral agreement to stop testing, based on a foolproof system of inspection and detection, would, in my opinion, jeopardize our national security.

"....We stand on the threshold of an era of nuclear power. This new power source, if it is to play any significant role in filling the energy needs of the world, will unleash amounts of radioactivity even more staggering than those involved in nuclear weaponry. It makes no difference whether the uranium atom is split inside a bomb or in a nuclear power reactor. If it is uncontrolled and enters man's environment, it contributes to the same ultimate hazard.

"That is why I urge that the nations of the world get together and allow their most expert scientists to discuss these hazards freely and openly. We have urgent need for a set of standards for radiation risks which take account of the global nature of fall-out and the awesome proportions of a future nuclear power industry...."(from Report by Representative Chester E. Holifield; Chairman, Special Radiation Subcom - mittee, Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.)

WHY SPACE VISITORS? --- (from letter from Associate Winogene Savage 10/3/57)

The article in the May-June Round Robin on Tektites, by Gaston Burridge interested me from two angles: Mineralogy, and Spacecraft. Tektites are discussed at length by Dr. H. H. Nininger in his recent book (1952) "Out of the Sky", An Introduction to Meteorites. He has the large meteorite museum now located at Sedona, Arizona - formerly near Winslow and the Great Meteor Crater. A chapter is devoted to Tektites, even to the possibility, in conclusion, that Tektites could be of lunar origin. And like BSR Assoc. Burridge, Dr. Nininger concludes his discussion with the statement that final proof must await more complete evidence. (Here is an excellent opportunity for psychometry and pendulum experts to do some research of their own!)

Mr. Burridge, however, presents some ideas on "space debris" that contradict a universe of law and order - that orbited planets should collide to the shattering of the smaller one into the known Asteroid Belt is an improbable conjecture! Space visitors themselves have given us the answer repeatedly, and it makes sense. Isiah XIV: 12 - 15 gives a good answer that is corroberated by Spacemen. (It is impossible for the masses to know of the network of music and drama enveloping us and filling the air above us without radio and television instruments to tap their frequency and make these programs audible and visible. The human body is a mechanism with tremendous powers to "receive" space messages when it is tuned up and turned on. Mark Probert is a living example with whom many of us are well acquainted. A very similar faculty uses the trumpet with independent voices, and for these high frequencies of spacecraft and people, offers free converse. They have told us the facts about "Maldek", the bright morning star of which Lucifer was the master-Mind. A planetary confederation watched his experiments with the atoms, and warned him, begged him to desist before it was too late. He didn't intend to destroy his planet and he had no intention of abandoning his dream of supreme rulership either! But the atomic experiments got out of hand, and beautiful Maldek became a shattered asteroid belt, reaching through all space with meteorites - and Tektites?

Now why should Spacepeople appear suddenly so very interested in our planet, making personal contacts among the people, and sending urgent messages through every "station" they can impress? The messages themselves explain their purpose! They failed to save Maldek! Must we of earth also continue to "harness the atom" until one sorry day it again gets out of hand and all life is destroyed or "Terra" becomes another "Asteroid Belt"? Scientists and Authorities are determined; the governments are secretive, and will not listen to what is being told to us as warnings, from Space friends. If any planet is advanced enough to send their spacecraft to try to warn us, we would be wise to listen! But our authorities would shoot them down to learn their secrets - which they would gladly give us if we were trustworthy! We judge them by ourselves. If we develop spacecraft to reach other planets, we would like to be treated courteously - or would we land to conquer? Think! And Think seriously! And "cease to explode ever more and more deadly atom bombs" - such is their message from space and from the other planets of our Solar System. They DID plan a television debut last November. Intercepters made their appearance impractical - they did not wish to create an incident. Now they are planning again. Will we again be derisive, hateful?

No, BSR Assoc. Burridge, it wasn't a collision of planets - in an orderly universe - that caused the Asteroid Belt! And you can become fascinated by the Saga of the Spaceships, even if you delve into its pages as a Science Fiction Drama. But Truth Is Stranger Than Fiction, and a lot more interesting! (And we do have tapes of trumpet talks with Space people - Venus, Mars, Saturn and others. And by every possible test, they are genuine!)

FROM ASSOC. MRS. LUE E. SALTER

Have just finished reading "The Third Eye", the autobiography of a Tibetan Lama by T. Lobsang Rampa published by Doubleday & Co.. On page 218 he tells of a group of Lamas finding very high in the Himalayan Mountains in the Chang Tang region a hot springs valley among the snow peaks that was verdant with tropical vegetation. Here they found giant animal skeletons which in life must have supported an animal of 20 to 30 feet high. Quote: "Here I had my first sight of a yeti. There within 10 yards of me, was this creature that I had heard so much about. We looked at each other, both of us frozen with fright for a period that seems ageless. It was pointing a hand at me, and uttering a curious mewing noise like a kitten. The head seemed to have no frontal lobes but sloped back almost directly from the very heavy brows. The chin receded greatly and the teeth were large and prominent. Yet the skull capacity appeared similar to that of modern man with the exception of the missing forehead. The hands and feet were large and splayed. The legs were bowed and the arms were much longer than normal. I observed that the creature walked on the outer side of the feet as humans do.

As I looked and perhaps jumped with fright, or from some other cause, the yeti screeched, turned and leaped away. It seemed to make 'one-leg' jumps and the result was like giant strides. Later thinking about it, I came to the conclusion that I must have broken the Tibetan sprint record for altitudes above 17,000 feet."

"Later we saw a few yetis in the distance. They hastened to hide at sight of us, and we certainly did not provoke them. The Lama Mengyar Dondup told us that these yetis were throwbacks of the human race who had taken a different path in evolution and who could only live in the most secluded places."

"I am prepared, when the Communists are chased out of Tibet, to accompany an expedition of sceptics and show them the yetis in the Highlands."

Knowing your interest in the "Abominable Snowmen" I knew this would interest you if you had not seen the book.

STRANGE SOUNDS FROM THE MOON: --- (from Nightline, W A T E - Radio, 9:45 PM 10/3/57)

Navy observatory men listen to noises on the moon with electronic ears. The surface of the moon is studied with a two million watt radar transmitter. The radar unit is also used to study "other objects" in space. Comments also made that this wasn't the first time the moon has been studied by radar, however, the radar wave lengths that are now being bounced off the moon are shorter than those in earlier sets previously used.

The sound graphs or pictures are later studied more carefully for any additiona information that may have been overlooked earlier.

SCIENTIFIC FRONTIERS: - - (from the Newsletter of the Parapsychology Foundation, Inc. Volume 4, No. 3 -- May-June 1957. TRAITE DE PARAPSYCHOLODIE by René Sudre. Paris: Payot, 1956. 493pp.)

This important work is an attempt to interpret the various kinds of paranormal phenomena in a scientific manner, and to incorporate them into general biology and the philosophy of evolution. Part I of the book reviews the history of animal magnetism, hypnosis, spiritism, and metaphysics. Part II surveys telepathy, clairvoyance, object-reading, precognition.

Part III considers the radiations and fluids allegedly emitted by human beings, auras, ectoplasm, telekinesis, apports, asports, materializations and ideoplasty, poltergeist phenomena, apparitions, hauntings. Part IV deals with the philosophical problems connected with the spirit-survival hypothesis, with paranormal cognition of the past, present and future, and with the relation of mind or spirit and nature. The discussion throughout is clear, sober, scholarly, and abundantly documented.

One of the author's chief and ably defended contentions is that the facts alleged to constitute evidence of personal survival can be accounted for more economically in terms of, together, the demonstrated capacity of the temporarily dissociated human mind to construct and enact personalities different from its own, in response to suggestion; and the capacity known to be possessed and ocasionally exercised by certain persons to obtain information in an extra-sensory manner.

The author does clearly show that these two capacities are enough to explain the great majority of supposed spirit manifestations. But his discussion altogether ignores certain cases, which hardly seem capable of being accounted for in the manner he describes.
